Purpose

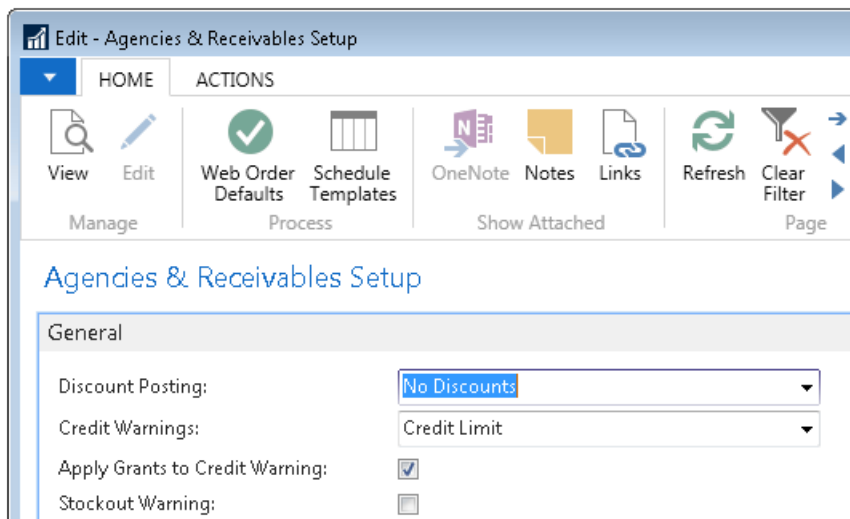

Credit Limits are used to control the maximum credit amount extended to an Agency, and is supported by the Credit management tools in Ceres. A credit limit is established at the Agency level, and is also displayed in summary format at the Parent Agency level. Ceres uses the credit limit information to perform a validation test when completing Agency journals, Agency orders and invoices. It tests the agency header and individual agency lines to see whether the credit limit has been exceeded. If the Credit limit is left blank, there will be no credit limit rules for this agency.

If you establish a credit limit in Ceres, and set the corresponding rules in Agency Express, you can prevent Agencies from ordering in excess of their credit limit via the web portal.

Ceres Object releases 4.00.00 & 4.50.31 are required for the functionality described in this document.

Credit Warnings: This field controls which credit warnings are displayed by Ceres when you create an Agency document (Order, Invoice, Return Order, and Credit Memo). The available options are:

Both Warnings: Both the Credit Limit and the Balance Due fields on the Agency Card are checked, and a warning is shown if the Agency has exceeded its credit limit or if the Agency has an overdue balance.

Credit Limit: The value in the Credit Limit field on the Agency's card is compared with the Agency's balance and a warning is shown if the Agency's balance exceeds this amount.

NOTE: If an Agency has exceeded their Credit Limit the User will not be able to override the Credit Limit Warning and proceed with the transaction unless the “Override Credit Limit Warning” option is selected on User Setup.

Overdue Balance: The Balance Due field on the Agency Card is checked and a warning is shown if the Agency has an overdue balance.
